Blue Jays pitcher Anthony Bass has been removed from the team's roster on Friday afternoon.

Bass said he stands by his "personal beliefs" just over a week after apologizing for sharing an anti-LGBTQ2S+ video on Instagram.

NEVER, NEVER give into the woke mob and apologize. They will only laugh at your cowardice like we have.

That's why apologizing or bending the knee is pointless with the Ministry of Truth. You just end up beheaded anyway.

And the woke idiots get another one. It's a shame when our government, politicians and now our beloved Blue Jays join the club.

Good for you Bass, you've done nothing wrong. You pitched a perfect game and the woke team didn't like it.

Bass was fired. And the Blue Jay management were stunningly inept in this whole matter. What should have happened. 1) Have the player make a public apology, which he did. (They got that part correct) 2) Get Bass out of the spotlight. Do not let him pitch any home games. 3) Work out a trade immediately (Remember a lot of teams including the Yankees don't even have a Pride night, so it shouldn't be difficult). But the Jays didn't do that. Instead they had the player meet with Prid

He apologized to a hateful mob and still lost his job. It's never enough for this cult.

He cites his christian faith - well, it took the catholic church over 300 years to forgive Galileo for his "sins." Don't hold your breath on LGBTQ2S+ rights.

I believe they just fired him over his religious beliefs. This is protected by the constitution... sue the league.
